CCH Statement Regarding International Transgender Day of Visibility

This International Transgender Day of Visibility, Contra Costa Health (CCH) stands in solidarity with the LGBTQIA+ community in extending our unwavering support for people who are transgender, as they strive to live their lives openly and proudly.

Health is more than a medical appointment. Good health also means taking care of who we are – including sex, race, age, culture, language, gender and who we love. Unfortunately, in 2023, the Trans community continues to be a target of hate and bullying.

That is why CCH chooses this day to honor members of the Trans community, and the larger LGBTQIA+ community, who have lost their lives during our decades-long civil rights struggle in the U.S., and those who continue to face danger because they choose to be true to who they are.

CCH supports Trans community members and employees in many ways, including wraparound services that reduce barriers to care for LGBTQIA+ people and specialty clinics where people who are trans or non-binary can receive the health services they need.
